Sedra Reflections by Sam Lyons: Mishpatim (Parshat Shekalim)

This Sedra contains numerous rules regulating our monetary dealings with each other. Parshat Shekalim, read from the second Sefer Torah, details the fixed half-shekel contribution that was paid towards the purchase of communal sacrifices during the month of Adar every year.

The Jerusalem Talmud relates in the name of Rabbi Meir that Moses had difficulty understanding this mitzvah of the half-shekel, so G-d showed him the likeness of a fiery coin and said: "...like this shall they give...".

What is the significance of this 'fiery coin'?

To paraphrase the Noam Elimelech (1717-1787): Just like fire, money properly used can bring warmth, light and joy – but money misused has the power to destroy life, limb and property.

A popular car sticker reads: 'Money talks – Mine's always saying "Goodbye!"'

If we correctly use the money with which we have been blessed, then we can be confident that after 120 years all the money to which we said "goodbye" will return and speak up for us with the same fiery enthusiasm that we exhibited when distributing it.

From the writings of the late Rev. Leslie Hardman zt'l (born 18th Feb 1913)

Many of us live expressively to impress our friends ..... who live expressively to impress us

The next monthly Kiddush will take place on Shabbat 24th March - Rosh Chodesh Nissan.
